GOLF TIP: FAIRWAY BUNKER SHOT

If there is a severe front lip in a fairway bunker, get the ball back in play by taking a lofted club and hitting the ball safely back to the fairway. If the lip is not in your way and the lie is good, you can take a less lofted club and go for the green. Take a light stance in the sand and do not dig in too much. Spread your feet slightly wider to keep the lower body quiet. Play the ball back in your stance one to two inches to assure that the club hits the ball before the sand. You want to make ball first contact and hit a little bit of sand out in front of the ball. The ideal swing picks the ball out cleanly. Move your body weight through the shot toward your target. Do not try to overpower this shot and swing easy. Take an extra club to have great tempo with this shot.
